Queensland, Australia

Why Queensland

With three distinct climate zones, Queensland is a 'one-stop-shop' for an incredible variety of foods that reflect our tropical heritage and love of an outdoor lifestyle.

Queensland has the largest area of agricultural land of any Australian state. Our state is home to the majority of Australia's beef herd and our farmers produce more than 120 types of fruit and vegetables.

Producing exceptional fresh produce means Queensland's processed food companies can produce everything from exotically flavoured beverages and decadent desserts, to health-promoting foods and naturally nutritious snacks.

Queensland food companies are committed to producing food that is safe and traceable, has a low environmental impact, and is delivered directly to valued customers – in both the retail and wholesale sectors. The companies participating in this year's Gulfood are among Queensland's best. They have the experience and expertise, along with the innovative flair to deliver a wide range of exciting products that appeal to a vast range of sophisticated buyers. High standards and a sense of pride drives Queensland producers to consistently deliver exceptional products that showcase local flavours and ingredients.

Queensland producers invest significant effort to keep up with market trends, especially health-conscious ones, and ensure they are responsive to buyer needs. Often adopting cutting edge, in-house production and processing facilities, the commitment of Queensland producers to high quality and food safety standards is world-class – meaning buyers can always have confidence in Queensland-made food products.
